INDIANA UNIVERSITY, BLOOMINGTON

The Indiana University School of Education graduate Adult Education Program in the Department of Instructional Systems Technology (IST) invites applications for an Open Rank faculty position in Adult Education. The Adult Education program is one of two programs in the IST department. Faculty in these programs are internationally recognized for their expertise in the areas of Human Resource Development, online teaching and learning, design pedagogy, informal learning, K-12 technology integration, collaborative learning, complex problem-solving, and multimedia development. The position is a ten-month full-time tenure track academic appointment beginning with the fall semester of the 2016 – 2017 academic year. The Adult Education master’s degree is delivered online and online teaching is a major element of this position. The successful applicant will be expected to teach, conduct and publish research, seek opportunities for internal and external grant funding, and supervise graduate students.

Qualifications:

The required qualifications are 1) an earned doctorate in adult education, instructional technology, or other related areas; and 2) evidence of successful online and face-to-face teaching and scholarly activity, such as grants or publication in professional journals and presentations at international and national conferences.

Highly desirable qualifications include: 1) research and teaching experience in the field of adult education; 2) knowledge of instructional technology and/or related areas; 3) commitment to collaborative models of learning and leadership; and 4) experience in advising graduate students or experience working in other situations where the applicant has worked with adult learners.

Responsibilities for this position include:

- Active participation with faculty in the School of Education and with graduate students.
- Teaching online graduate courses in Adult Education.
- Developing and maintaining a strong research agenda as evidenced by grant support and refereed publications.
- Advising Master’s and Doctoral students.
- Involvement in program/course development and refinement.

To apply for this position, upload a letter of interest, vita, a transcript of graduate work, and a sample of your scholarly writing and contact information of three references to http://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/1681. Three additional (total of six) references will be needed for the associate or professor level. References will be contacted only after applicant has been notified.

Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2015 and continue until the position is filled.
