The Indiana University School of Education graduate Adult Education Program in the Department of Instructional Systems Technology (IST) invites applications for a Clinical Assistant Professor in Adult Education. The position is a ten month academic appointment beginning with the fall semester of the 2014 – 2015 academic year. The Adult Education masters degree is delivered online and online teaching is a major element of this position. The faculty member will be expected to teach a minimum of three graduate online courses each semester during the academic year. The Adult Education Program seeks applicants with a broad knowledge of the field of adult education, including familiarity with emergent theories and areas of study. The successful applicant will be expected to teach, conduct training, and supervise graduate students.

Qualifications:

The required qualifications are 1) an earned doctorate in areas related to adult education, informal learning, instructional technology, higher education administration, or other appropriate academic content, and 2) evidence of successful online teaching and course development.

Highly desirable qualifications include 1) experience with the theory and practice of Participation Training in adult education, 2) demonstrated commitment to teamwork and competence as a collaborator across disciplines, and (3) experience in advising graduate students or experience working in other situations where the applicant has worked with adult learners.

Responsibilities for this position include:

- Active participation with faculty in the School of Education and with advanced graduate students.
- Teaching online graduate courses in Adult Education
- Advising Masters students
- Conducting Participation Training.
- Involvement in program/course development and refinement

To apply for this position, upload to: http://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/429 a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, transcripts of graduate work, scholarship related to teaching and names and contact information for three letters of reference. References will be contacted.

Review of applications will begin on October 21, 2013 and continue until the position is filled.
For questions regarding this position, please contact the chair of the search committee, Frank R. DiSilvestro, Instructional Systems Technology Search Committee, School of Education, Indiana University, 201 N. Rose Ave, Bloomington, IN 47405 disil@indiana.edu 812-856-6520. For more information about the Adult Education Graduate Program, please visit our website at: http://education.indiana.edu/~ist.

The faculty of Indiana University is committed to achieving excellence through cultural diversity. The university actively encourages applications and nominations of women, persons of color, applicants with disabilities, and members of other under-represented groups. Indiana University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.