The Raleigh W. Holmstedt Dissertation Year Fellowship
Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana
Educational Leadership and Policy Studies

Eligibility: This fellowship is to be awarded to support doctoral students in the Higher Education or Educational Leadership programs who have completed their qualifying examinations and are working on approved dissertation topics. The award is intended to encourage doctoral students to remain on campus as full-time students to work on their dissertations. It is possible to split the award amount between two or more equally deserving candidates who meet the criteria.

Award Value: The amount of the award depends on the income available from the Holmstedt Fellowship endowment and the number of fellowships awarded.

Selection Criteria Established by the Fellowship Committee:
(1) Candidates must be Ed.D. or Ph.D. students in the Higher Education or Educational Leadership programs who have had their dissertation proposals approved by their research committees, and will be in residence on the Bloomington or Indianapolis campuses during the entire period of the award.
(2) Candidates must be judged to have excellent proposals for dissertation research.
(3) Candidates’ demonstrated need for financial assistance can also be taken into account.

Selection Process: A committee consisting of the full-time Higher Education faculty will decide by approximately April 15.

Deadline: February 4 of each year. A letter of application should address how the candidate meets the selection criteria and include an indication of how the candidate would use the award, a statement of the candidate’s financial need, and a copy of the candidate’s approved dissertation proposal. Applications should be submitted to Danielle De Sawal, Chair of HESA Fellowships Committee, Education, 4272, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405.
