

Proposed Changes: Removal of HIST-A 363 Hoosier Nation: Indiana in American History

Rationale: During the last revision of the B.S. in Education: Social Studies program of study, the social studies education faculty decided to include HIST A-363: Hoosier Nation: Indiana in American History as a requirement for graduation because the Indiana CORE Assessment: Historical Perspectives licensure exam included a domain for Indiana History. However, in July 2021, Indiana will transition to the PRAXIS licensure exam, which will not include Indiana History as a domain. Therefore, the course content is no longer critical to licensure of social studies educators. Additionally, because HIST A-363 is taught by one faculty member in the history department, the course is rarely offered. Because there is no longer a licensure exam imperative and the challenges facing the history department to staff the course, the social studies education faculty recommend the removal of HIST A-363: Hoosier Nation: Indiana in American History and replaced by adding three “HIST 300+ elective” credits to the program of study.

This program sheet is effective for all students starting at IUB beginning summer 2020.
