IU Bloomington Requirements for a MS in Education Degree

At least the minimums of Indiana Rules 46-47 in regard to graduate work in schools and departments other than Education must be met by students earning a public school license as part of the degree. For all students the requirements of the major field within the M.S. degree in Education are applicable, but in no case is the number of credits in schools and departments other than Education to be less than six hours of three hundred and four hundred level courses or above.
