Course Change Proposal

Z510 Arts and Creativity for High Ability Students 3 credit hours Bloomington campus

Participants explore issues and practices related to creativity, the arts, and teaching students of high academic and artistic ability. Focus is on creativity and student identification, curriculum development, programming, and assessment.

Justification: The integrity of the academic and artistic high ability emphasis of the original course is maintained in the revised course, but the revised course title and description reflect an interest in creativity that is a current issue in high ability education.
